CORNB, B.C.—Striking coal miners and police who clashed April 17 with resultant injuries to some two score persons, engaged in another bout of struggle last Thursday. Strikers met police in a fan-farthing baseball game and when the final strike was called nobody could say who had won. Adam Bell, British Columbia deputy minister of labor here to seek a settlement of the strike which had lasted less than 24 hours, said.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Jackie Coogan, "the kid" of ascension 15 years ago, lay injured here Monday, the survivor of a motor crash that killed four persons, including his father, John Coogan. Young Coogan suffered two fractured ribs and a skull fracture. The crash occurred in a highway nearby near Junior Dutton, 12, wrecked juvenile actor and husband of actress Young Coogan. Robert Henson, 15, Los Angeles headlining actor, was killed. Coogan, who was a famous child actor, writer, and Charles Jones, 24, former of the Coogan ranch near Pine Valley, their car crashed off the highway into a rocky chasm at another car approached them.

From Castle to cottage, Canadians joined in celebrating the silver jubilee of King George's accession to the throne. In cities, towns and hamlets millions of Canadians rejoiced and rendered thanksgiving to the king. Empire wide celebrations that gladdened the globe Monday.

Thirty thousand people jammed the towers of Parliament Hill at Ottawa to join the Governor General and political leaders of the country in expressions of loyalty to the King. In larger cities, smaller towns, the crowds gathered, hands played, soldiers marched along flag bedecked streets. And all for the purpose of paying tribute to the King and wish him well in the future.

Monday afternoon Canadians heard King talking to them at Ottawa. Empire citizens through a world-wide broadcast hookup. In the frozen north Indians and Eskimos gathered in trading depots and listened.

WINNIPEG—The Dominion government is prepared to furnish $100,000 or whatever may be necessary, to deal with the drought problem in Western Canada. Hon. R. R. Hanson, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said in an address here last Thursday. Reclamation of the drought-stricken area is a duty recognized by the government, he said, and the present administration is ready to do it to a reasonable length to repair the ravages of long years of drought and to restore the affected areas to productivity.

OTTAWA—The Bank of Canada disclosed Friday a "rather curious" attempt at counterfeiting the new $1 and $2 notes of the institution has been discovered in western Canada. The bank said the counterfeiters had appeared in the vicinities of Regina and Saskatoon. "Both the face and the back of the counterfeit are blurred in appearance and the numbers were not printed in too prominent a relation to the other colors in the note," the bank's statement said. "The counterfeiters felt somewhat glibly that the touch and can easily be detected by casual examination." It added. J. McCrear, representative of Northwest Paper Sales Co., was a business visitor in Carleton last week.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER GIVEN MISS LEITA GORDON

On Wednesday afternoon last Miss Molly Malton entertained about 25 young ladies in tea and miscellaneous showers in honor of Miss Leita Gordon. The table was centered with a Maple with streamers in pastel shades to which were attached the many useful gifts presented to Miss Gordon by Irene Wilson.

The hostess served a dainty repast and presented Miss Leita Trumblé with the prize for the contest.

WHEAT SEEDING ABOUT SEVENTY P.C. DONE HERE

With almost ideal conditions for a few days last week, seeding of wheat in the Carleton district has advanced rapidly and it is estimated that about seventy per cent of the wheat has now been drilled. Seeding of coarse grains is also progressing rapidly and within another few days most of the spring grains in this district will be seeded. Many farmers in this territory reported that they had completed their entire seeding operation last Saturday and others have finished planting their wheat, but still have their coarse grains to seed.

Below will be found a brief summary of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions and in all sections of the districts mentioned.

General
 Farming operations have been delayed in many parts of the Dominion by unsatisfactory weather. In British Columbia the season is fully two weeks later than usual. In the Prairie Provinces it is one or two weeks late and in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces is somewhat backward. In Ontario and the other hand the season is about ten days earlier than usual and farming operations in that province are well advanced. Seeding is becoming fairly general in the southern and central districts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but it has been a rather late start in the northern areas of the province. In Alberta, where the initial moisture conditions generally are ample, subsoil moisture reserves are meagre over large areas. In Quebec spring ploughing is not yet general due to continuance of frost in the ground. Fall wheat in Ontario has and seeding is general. In the Maritime provinces, owing to adverse weather, seeding will be delayed by as much as two weeks in certain sections. Fall wheat wintered well in British Columbia and sowing of spring grains is 50 per cent completed. Germination however, has been slow and growth is backward.

Alberta
 Seeding is not likely to be general until May 15th. The seed bed is in good condition and there is ample soil moisture but little reserve moisture in the subsoil. The late season is likely to result in a decrease in wheat acreage and a corresponding increase in the acreage of coarse grains. Pastures need warmth. Sugar beet seeding is backward.

Social Credit Meeting is Addressed by F. Anderson

A well attended, interesting meeting was held in the Farmers' Exchange Hall, Carleton on Friday evening, May 3rd when Mr. F. Anderson, the speaker gave a very comprehensive talk on social credit.

Mr. Anderson showed that the present system, based on the banks was insufficient to meet present demands, and outlined the necessity for more buying power for the consumer.

With the aid of charts, taking the form of the circle in which currency moved, he showed how in the present system the flow to the banks was too great in comparison with the flow from the employer to the consumer. To meet this deficiency, the social credit clearing house would limit the cycle by giving credit directly to the consumer in the form of social credit dividends.

Going on, Mr. Anderson gave a brief discussion on the "shut-out" of the men at the head of social credit and stated that they were of the best. The popular feeling that social credit cannot be successfully undertaken by one province in the Dominion was then discussed when Mr. Anderson said that if Major Douglas could initiate a successful plan for one industry in a place of such coarse industries as a Great Britain, surely it could be done in Alberta.

Then he went on to say that conditions being as they were something must be done. Mr. Anderson said that he had seen men kill men with the primitive methods of the natives fighting with spears to the scientific fighting of the Great War, but violence was the most terrible.

Winding up his speech, Mr. Anderson read a list of the things in which Canada had been the first and said: "And by the finger of God she will be the first with social credit."

A joint service of the Carleton Knights and United Church of Canada, held in the Farmers' Exchange Hall on Jubilee Day, Monday, May 6. The hall was decorated with bays for the occasion. The Duke of York and Lady Roberts Chapters L.O.R.E., the C. G. T. and the Boy Scouts marched to the service behind the flag.

DUST STORM COVERS SOUTHERN ALBERTA

One of the old time dirt storms visited the district on Saturday about five o'clock and as thick weathered that visibility was blocked for some time. Coming up from the north, the storm was visible for some time before it struck with terrific force and in a few minutes the sky was black with dust. As thick were the flying particles that one could not see across the town streets and lights had to be turned on. Fortunately the storm did not last for more than about fifteen minutes and the air soon cleared of dust. Within an hour the wind had subsided and the sun shone brightly. The night proved busy one for the townspeople.

SOCIAL CREDIT NOMINATING CONVENTION

A large gathering of delegates attended the Social Credit nominating convention in Arme on Saturday, May 10. There were seven men nominated as possible candidates, as follows: Messrs. E. Foster, H. Hamel, J. Price, B. K. K. W. A. Bishler, A. Wharley, J. Hain. From these seven the first four were selected to be submitted to the Alberta Advisory Committee, which will select two men from the list to represent the Social Credit party as candidates for the Dominion Convention in the forthcoming provincial election. The names of the candidates selected, however, will not be made public until after the election date has been announced. The convention was presided over by Mr. F. Anderson of Calgary.

Among the matters taken up in the convention was that of paying the expenses of their candidates and it was decided that the Social Credit group should do this.

The mass meeting addressed by Mr. Anderson in the evening was well attended.

A. Sheline Is Lib. Candidate For Didsbury

Andrew Sheline, former mayor of Thrie Hills, received the unanimous endorsement of the Didsbury provincial Liberal nominating convention at Arme last Friday afternoon. Mr. Sheline came to Didsbury in 1906. For the last 24 years he has resided in Thrie Hills and has been mayor there for the past ten years. In accepting his nomination, Mr. Sheline stated that whatever he had gained had come from this area and now in return he was anxious to serve the community. W. D. Hanson, provincial leader, outlined constructive activities and made the history of Liberal candidates in the field.

C. B. Walcott, federal Liberal candidate for River, spoke briefly on the subject of reform, unemployment, trade and railways.

A. McArthur gave a brief outline of the recent Young Liberal convention in Calgary.

Mr. Peris, of Arme, was elected permanent secretary of the Didsbury Liberal association. E. R. Kelme Arme was in the chair.

CORPORAL STEVE'S DARING STRATEGY

A splendid piece of daring strategy was effected by Constable Steves of Carleton R.C.M.P. detachment, driven by C. Mortimer, of the Calgary Herald staff. Steves was shown by a farmer the direction Kees was running towards in the corn field. In the field he ordered Mortimer to drive two miles west and then one mile south, stopping at a farm. There he cornered Mortimer's horse and the farmer's overalls, removed his tunic and mounted on an unbridled horse. In this disguise, Steves proceeded out alone the road and in the direction of Kees, when the horse he thought might be tied around to demand the horse. Waiting he mounted slowly. Steves first got within thirty feet of Kees when the "Where'd you bury him?" asked Stone shortly.

"Over there. . . . Our fire was there. . . . His finger pointed to a dip in the land. The drifting sand had filled the hollow and the stone did not recognize the place. "It was a-steeple-then. . . . " Peyotl pointed. . . . "Next thing I knowed Mist Sam waked me up and I seen . . . It . . . We buried him over that clump o' mesquite.

Stone flung him aside and walked over to the pile of loose rocks. How much of this fantastic tale was true; how much the phantasm of a disoriented mind?

He threw those rocks aside as a boy throws pebbles and he was breathless when he saw what he thought . . . some tattered rags and a scrap of old leather that the coyotes had left. There was more than that but the desert wind and the sun and the scouring winds had done their work and he uncovered only a handful of sand-covered bones to tell whether Peyotl Gregg had lied or not. His hand hung poised over the skull that, for reasons, he hated to touch. But that skull was vital. If Peyotl told the truth that skull would be shattered.

He glanced at Peyotl, but Peyotl had got out one of his doped cartridges and was oblivious to all. He picked up that repulsive skull and examined it carefully. Peyotl had killed this man by smashing his head with a rock then the bones would be broken. But the skull was intact! Not till he turned it over and looked at it aside, did he see a gaping hole in the back. Then he heard the "chink-chink" of some solid object in his side it. Doubtless it was a pebble that had worked its way inside the skull. He turned the gruesome object over and over in his hands. Then something dropped at his feet with a soft thud and, glancing at it, he dropped the skull with a sharp oath. There, lying between his feet, flattened to the point, its sides scored with green veridigris, lay a forty-one caliber soft lead bullet!

With a quick little gasping oath, he picked it up and fitted it to the hole in the back of the skull. It fitted! There was no doubt about it. The man had died, not from having his head smashed with a rock but from a bullet shot through the back of his head at very close range.

He replaced all the bones except the skull, replaced the rocks and went back to the horses where Peyotl sat crouching against the wind.

"This man was shot with a forty-one caliber gun," he said in a low voice. Peyotl stared at him duly and Stone angled at his stupidity, kicked him.

"How'm I to know if it's Kane?" he said.

"Look at his shoes," said Peyotl with a flash of intelligence. "He all put 'K' on the heel in iron tracks." After long search Stone found one shoe whose heel was flattened.

"Where'd you get that gun from that shot Kane with?" he asked.

"I tell you I took it from him," said Peyotl when he got back to him. "It was Kane's life!"

"But when I looked the gun from Mist Sam. You got that it now. Well, that gun belong to?"

"I told you I lifted it from Mist Sam. . . ."

"That was with you up here when . . . when Kane was killed?"

"Yeah. He sure was."

Stone stood and stared at the man. He could hardly believe what he knew to be true. He turned to his pony, reined the saddle and whirled on Peyotl:

"Come into saddle at once!" he snapped. "We're going back at once!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Dustin's summary arrest galvanized Secco. Men gathered before every store discussing it and questioning for details. For five years Jim Gary and Goddard had been considered immune to arrest and now Jim Gary had taken him as casually as he might have taken any common braver and no man knew exactly why. He must have done something. He must have done something on the arm as Dustin stopped Doc Epps to question him about the robbery of the gold mine that day.

"I've got a warrant for your arrest, Peyotl," he said. "The charge is open violation of the Narcotic Act."

"What?" Dustin spun about and his eyes snapped: "You mean that you're arrestin' me? You're crazy! Shove!"

"Mebbe. That's got nothin' to do with the matter. The question is . . . are you comin' with me or do I have to take you?"

There was a light in Jim Gary's eyes that spoke more plainly than any words. Dustin made up his mind at once.

"I'll come with you of course. This is absurd. Who's sworn out the warrant?"

Jim named Stone from the Hour-glass. He swears he found you with your pockets stuffed with peyotl cigarettes and Peyotl Gregg says you've kept him supplied for years."

"That's the lyin' hood. . . . Dustin burst into a torrent of invective. "You mean to tell me that you're arrestin' me, a well-known man? What has he got to do with charge? I want to see a lawyer first of all."

"First of all, you'll come with me," said Gary who knew that with Dustin once locked up, he could keep him incommunicado for some time.

There was no help for it and Jim Gary, mindful of details, did not offer Dustin the hospitality of his home as he had done with Carr. He conducted his prisoner to the city lock-up in Secco and locked him into the big steel cage behind his deputy to allow him to see no one except under special instructions.

"You're all right for the night," he said. "Water, grub'll be supplied from the Bon Ton restaurant, two books and a paper. I'll tell Bill Masters that you want to see him. He's your attorney, ain't he?" By the way Dustin . . .

"You might be your own' count's little figurin' on your deed." The penalty for murder in this State is hangin'. Cattle-rustlin' an' being accessory before the act in a shootin' case carries a stiff sentence too. . . .

With this Partisan arrow Gary left and Dustin, appalled, stared after him. What could the man know? The very uncertainty brought the sweat to his forehead in great beads. Surely he had covered his tracks too well to have been discovered. What Gary had said must be just a shot in the dark? He could not know nothing. Even if Peyotl Gregg had told all he knew, no jury would convict a man on the testimony of one witness and that witness a drug-addict. For the charge on which he was arrested Dustin knew he would be free in a short time.

But Sam Dustin failed to remember that the day was Saturday and that Monday was May the thirtieth, a National holiday and that all offices would be closed. That three-day period gave Stone all the time he needed but it was late when he rode up Secco's main street, tired and dirty, with Peyotl sulking at his heels and scared to death. Jameson opened the door and fairly dragged Stone in his office.

"Well. . . . said Jameson quivering with excitement.

"Get enough to convict any man before a fair-minded jury," said Stone. "Has Gary arrested Dustin?"

"He nailed him Saturday night," said Jameson. "He'll be in the jail. While Dustin's squealin' like a stuck pig, what he wants to do when he's alone and Spike Goddard is threatenin' to accuse him from the Union."

If Gary don't run Dustin loose tomorrow, you'd better look out for Dustin when he gets back."

"He'll not get back," said Stone. "Listen to me, Jameson. . . . And Stone told him all that had taken place and went up by his own car. Old shoes and the shattered skull on the desk. At sight of the skull the man shivered and took to his heels.

"I got that gun back here," said he. "Take it to you for it."

"You might have used it for 'editin' the paper," grinned Stone. "Well, a bit, but I don't know if I know it. Dustin killed Kane. We know the motive. Kane took Dustin into the hills to shoot him and put the blame on that poor fool Peyotl. He drove Peyotl to shoot Kane in the Silver Dollar too. It's a big price to pay for a ranch, even as good as the Hour-glass with a gold mine on it. Two men killed over a ranch. . . ."

"It was over that damned red-handed girl of Carr's," said Goddard hotly. "I told him he was playin' the damned fool. . . . I told him he'd sure as hell trip himself. . . ."

Appalled at the significance of his thoughtless words he stood agast but it was too late. Stone and Gary and Jameson had all heard what he said and knew his dread significance. Gary swung on him at once.

"I'll just nail you as an accessory before the fact," he said. "You'll come with me."

And before Spike Goddard knew what was happening, Gary slipped a pair of light manacles about his wrists. The feel of the cold steel and the shock of the lock struck a chill to the heart of the ranchman. He sank into a chair and burst into abusive profanity.

"Be careful what you say," warned Gary. "It may be used against you in this at all."

Find Skeletons Of Human Beings Believed To Have Belonged To Medieval Times

Several skeletons of human beings, believed to have belonged to medieval times, have been found near Newbury, England. The bones were discovered two feet below the surface, and the position shows that the bodies were buried with their heads to the east. The spot is near a building known as "The Latten," on the site of which at one time was the priory of St. Bartholomew, and attached to it was a chapel, part of which, still stands.

Little Helps For This Week

Consider the lilies of the field how they grow. Matthew 6:28.

They do not toil. Content with their allotted task. They do not grow, they do not ask. A richer lot, a higher sphere. But in their loveliness appear. And grow and smile, and do their best.

And unto God they leave the rest.

Interpose no barrier to His life-giving power, working in you all the good pleasure of His will. Yield yourself utterly to His sweet control. Put your growing into His hands as completely as He will have put all your other affairs. Suffer Him to manage it as He will. Do not content yourself about it, nor even think of it. Trust Him absolutely and always. Accept each moment's dispensation as it comes to you from His dear hands as being the neediest assistance or dew for that moment's growth. Say a continual "yes" to your Father's will. Look at the flowers in the serene summer days. They quietly open their petals and the sun shines into them with its gentle influence. So will you, if you will, if you will yield yourself to Him.
